Electrical Sockets / Adaptors

Switzerland uses its own type of electrical socket with an earthing pin (type J), which is different from the type E socket used in most other Western European countries. Delegates should therefore be informed that they need to bring an adaptor in order to charge laptops/any electrical items. However, standard smartphone chargers (type C plugs) generally do not require an adaptor.

WiFi

For delegates without an eduroam account:

1. public-unifr: University guests can connect to the 'public-unifr' network.
2. Registration by SMS: Activate Wi-Fi, select 'public-unifr', then choose 'Registration by SMS'. Enter your phone number and follow the instructions to obtain and enter the access code sent to you by text message.

With Many Thanks to the Conference Sponsors

The Swiss Centre of Expertise in Life Course Research (LIVES) is an interdisciplinary research platform funded by the Universities of Lausanne and Geneva. It brings together a network of 280 researchers from Switzerland and beyond in the fields of sociology, demography, psychology, social policy and political science, economics, epidemiology, health sciences and statistics.

Our activities include an international conference, grants for visiting international researchers, as well as various research seminars and projects. We also support and train the next generation of life course researchers with our doctoral programme, and we provide grants for young scholars.

Finally, the LIVES Centre aims to make scientific research accessible to society by sharing knowledge with professionals and the general public.

www.centre-lives.ch/en

The UCL Centre for Longitudinal Studies is a world-leading centre for research, scientific development and operational management of a unique series of nationally representative UK longitudinal studies. Our studies follow multiple generations of people across the whole of their lives. The majority of our studies are birth cohort studies that started at birth, or in the first year of life.

By collecting information from the same people over time, we build powerful resources for research and policy development. For more than 60 years, evidence from our studies has helped to inform and shape the world we live in today.

We are part of the UCL Social Research Institute based at the IOE, UCL's Faculty of Education and Society. We are funded by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) and receive co-funding from a number of different funding bodies.

Population Research UK (PRUK) is an initiative dedicated to unlocking the potential of the UK's longitudinal population studies across social, economic, and biomedical research.

Our goal is to maximise the impact of longitudinal data by fostering interdisciplinary collaboration, improving accessibility, and informing policy. We provide leadership for the LPS community, advocate for its needs, and strategically invest in solutions that enhance research outcomes. We focus on five key objectives to drive change: 1) Coordinate and advocate for the LPS community; 2) Enhance discovery capabilities for LPS; 3) Streamline data access processes and mechanisms; 4) Facilitate LPS linked data use; 5) Build capacity and skills for LPS.

We are funded by the UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) Infrastructure Fund managed by the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC) and the Medical Research Council (MRC).

President's Welcome

Greetings SLLS Colleagues!

It is my very great pleasure to welcome you to the 2025 meeting of the Society for Longitudinal and Life Course Studies, being held this year at the University of Fribourg in the beautiful city of Fribourg, Switzerland. Our very timely theme this year is Life Course Transitions and Patterns: Stronger Evidence for Better Policies. Across societies, we are experiencing a convergence of real changes in how lives are experienced from birth to death, posing issues ranging from the reconfiguring of early-life transitions and the implications of the lengthening life-course to the continuing debates over the life course institutionalization / deinstitutionalization. The need for fresh and high-quality data ensures that we will continue to have plenty of work to do, to describe, characterize and analyze the changing and context-specific shape of the life course, and the degree to which earlier life circumstances and opportunities are allowed to impact subsequent life course experience.

As you will see, the conference program features a rich and lively set of opportunities for learning and discussion of such topics, including a diverse and intriguing range of concurrent sessions offering fresh findings and insights from multiple national contexts, exciting keynote speakers, and ample opportunities for informal interaction with colleagues old and new, from nearby and across the globe. It is through such interaction that we all grow and gain a sense of the global scope and diversity of our field, and of the changing structure and dynamics of the life course, and the key factors shaping them. It is only by understanding how (and indeed the extent to which) the life course is organized in different cultural settings and the antecedents and consequences of such structuring that we can achieve an adequate understanding of the subject matter of the life course.

And again this year, the conference is followed by a promising day of four workshop opportunities.

On behalf of all of us, I want to express our appreciation and gratitude to our conference sponsors LIVES – Swiss Centre of Expertise in Life Course Research, UCL Centre for Longitudinal Studies (CLS), and Population Research UK (PRUK).

We also want to express our great appreciation to Stéphane Cullati and the team at the #PopHealthLab of the University of Fribourg for hosting the conference. It has been a real pleasure to work with Stéphane and his dedicated colleagues throughout this process. They have worked carefully to ensure that the conference experience will be an enjoyable and productive one, and will facilitate opportunities for discussion. We also all owe a huge debt of thanks to Cat Westlake, SLLS Executive Administrator. Much of Cat's careful work for SLLS occurs behind the scenes, but again this year, she has kept all of us on track to ensure that things run smoothly.

Again welcome, and have a wonderful conference!

Dale Dannefer

Welcome from the Hosts

We are delighted to welcome you to the 2025 Annual Meeting of the Society for Longitudinal and Lifecourse Studies (SLLS), hosted this year by the Population Health Laboratory (#PopHealthLab) of the University of Fribourg. It is a great pleasure to gather with you in Fribourg, a city at the linguistic and cultural crossroads of Switzerland, and to offer our university and our research environment as the setting for this year's conference.

This year's theme, Life Course Transitions and Patterns: Stronger Evidence for Better Policies, reflects the growing need to produce robust, longitudinal, and interdisciplinary research that informs social, health, and economic policy. The theme highlights the role of life course research in addressing complex societal challenges, from pension reform and equitable healthcare to education, social protection, and the workplace. Much like SLLS, we believe in the power of longitudinal data and multidisciplinary perspectives to understand how social and biological factors unfold over time to shape individual and population health.

The #PopHealthLab is a multidisciplinary research centre bringing together scholars in epidemiology, public health, sociology, demography, medicine, and health services research. It is part of the Swiss School of Public Health (SSPH+), a unique network of public health researchers across Switzerland. Our work examines how health trajectories develop across the life course in relation to individual experiences, social structures, and policy environments. Within an evidence-based framework, we explore how exposures across the life course, cumulative disadvantage, and social policies interact to produce divergent health trajectories, with a focus on chronic diseases. This makes hosting the SLLS conference a particularly fitting endeavour, and we are proud to share our research environment with you.

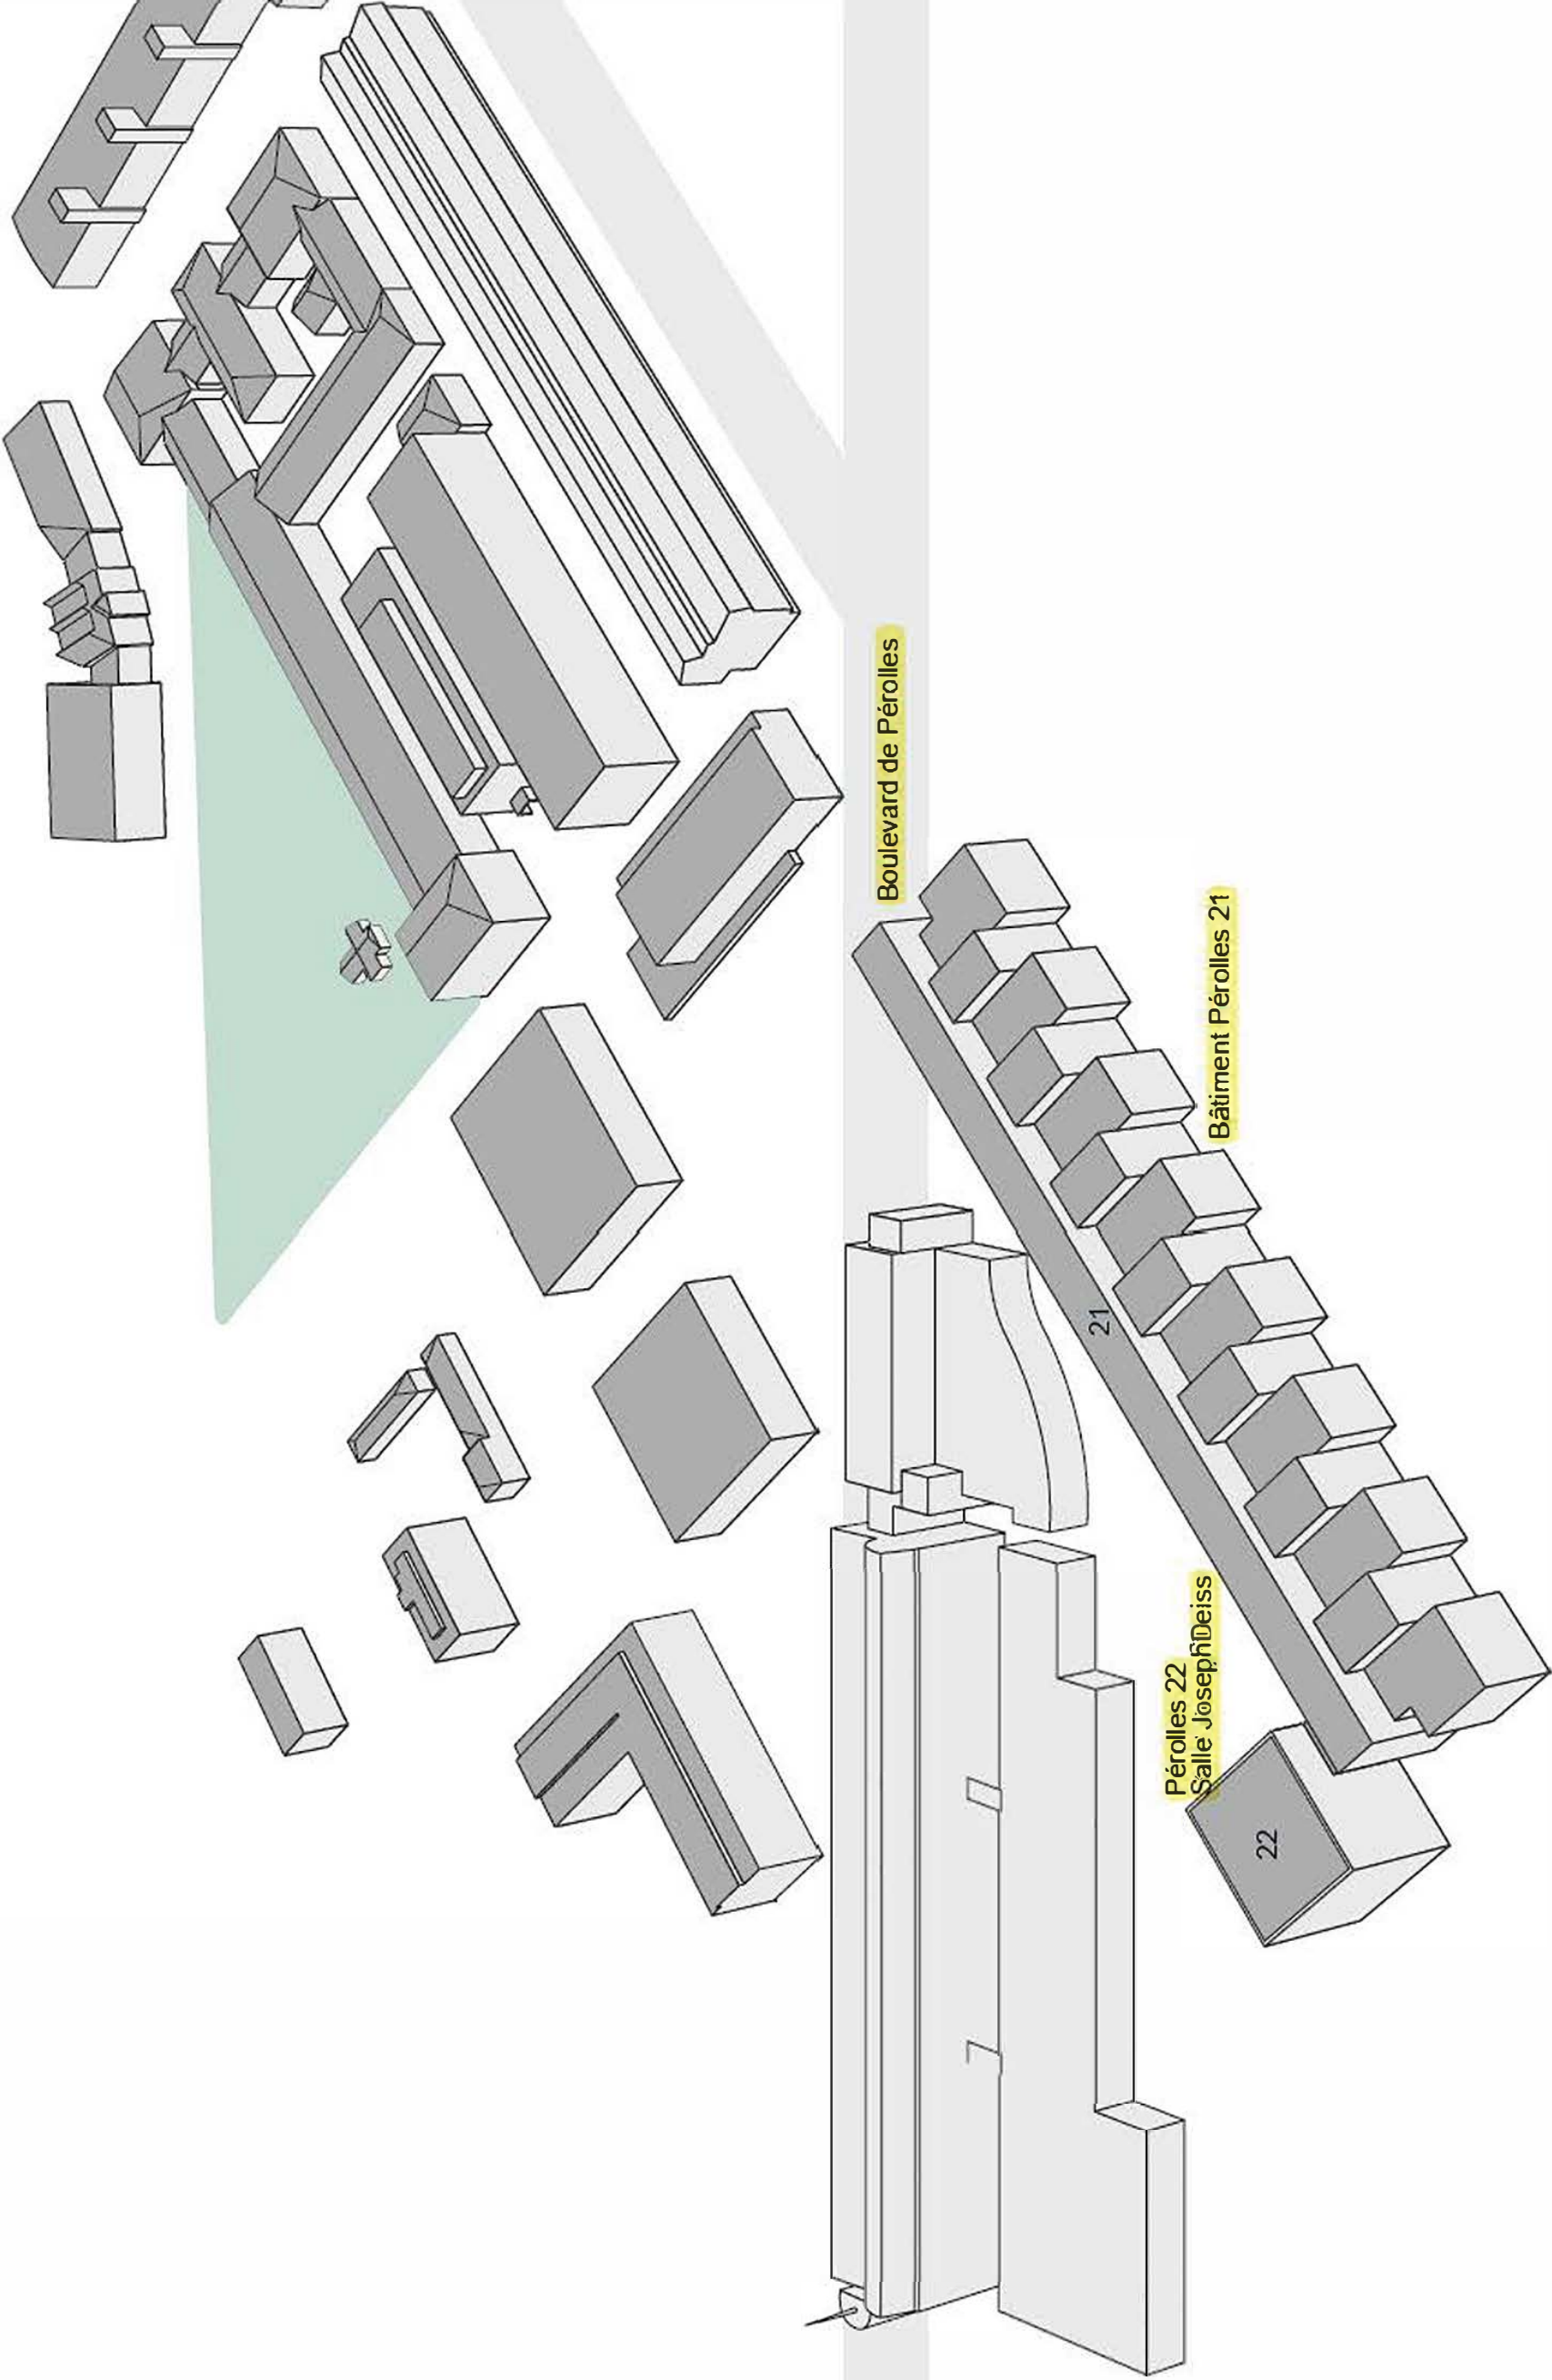

The University of Fribourg is uniquely positioned at the crossroads of French- and German-speaking Switzerland, fostering multilingual and multicultural dialogue. The conference will take place in our Pérolles campus, within easy reach of the medieval Old Town, with its Gothic cathedral, cobbled streets, and the Sarine river which provide a beautiful backdrop to the scholarly exchanges taking place.

This year's programme features four keynote lectures, 22 symposia, 37 individual paper sessions, organised in six parallel strands, a poster session, the SLLS group meetings and a dedicated event for early-career researchers. The conference will be followed by four workshops on Thursday 11th September. We are especially grateful to our partners and sponsors, including the Swiss Center of Expertise in Life Course Research (LIVES), for their support.

We hope the conference will provide you not only with inspiration and insight but also opportunities to connect, collaborate, and enjoy the unique atmosphere of Fribourg. Thank you for joining us in what promises to be a memorable edition of the SLLS conference.

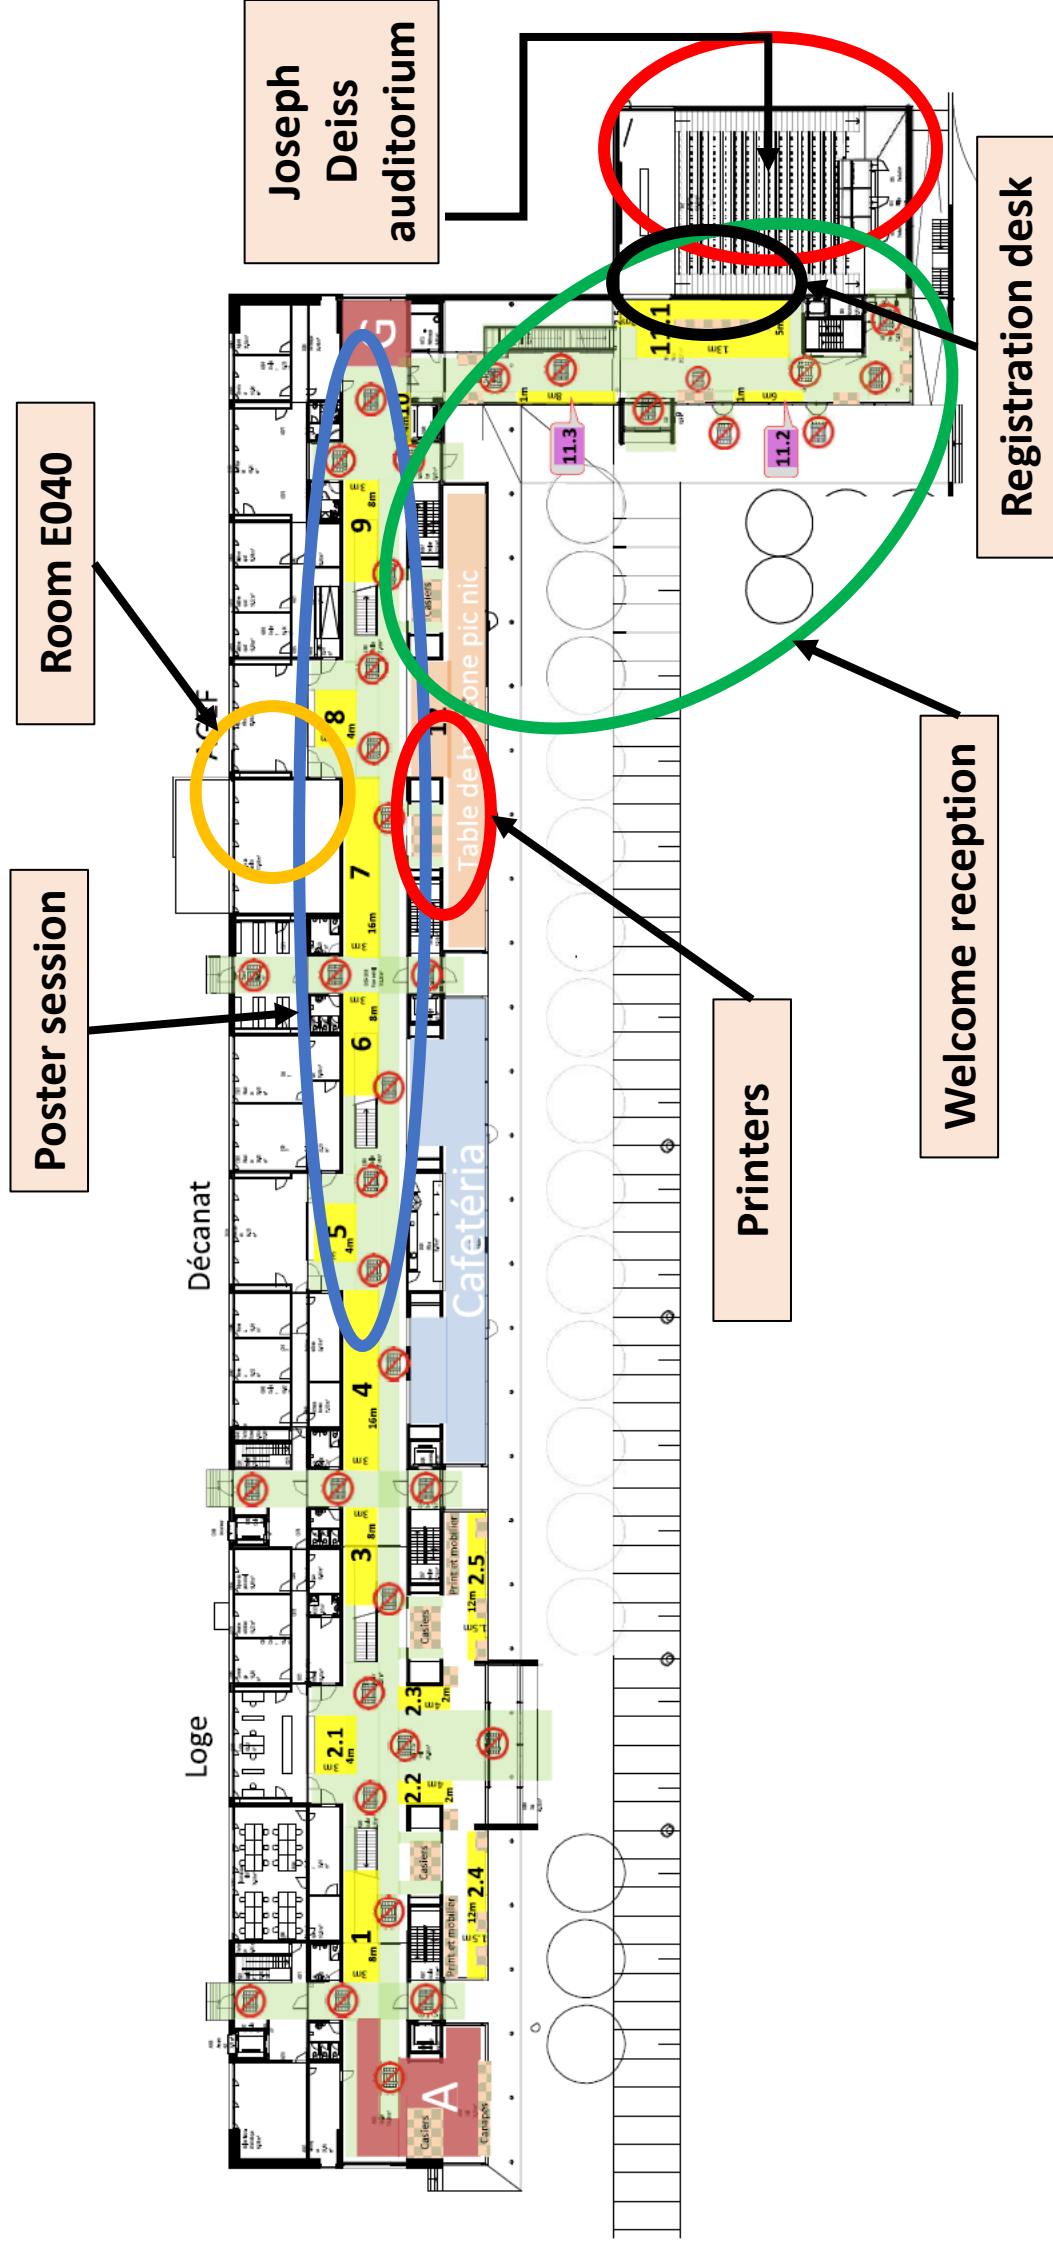

Stéphane Cullati, Senior Lecturer, and Arnaud Chiolerio, Director of the #PopHealthLab

On behalf of the local organising team, #PopHealthLab, University of Fribourg
